

A. The comments of the Italian students to the poems of the Polish and French partner students

1. War justifies none of us,

That is a nice poem, it is very significant because it talks about war and we are very worried in Italy.

The text makes us reflect a lot because it helps us to think that our life is beautiful, but it is so if we commit ourselves to respect and defend it. The animals themselves teach us: they do not fight each other as men do using war.

Giada

2. Why war over peace?

Peace is very important because every country has the right to live in peace.

The question under this poem is really central! Does it make sense to want to achieve peace through the enormous and unimaginable damage that war brings?

Giada and Elisa

3. One thing about travelling.

We also studied Europe States and made virtual travels and traveling is important in life because you can get to know new cultures and traditions. We really enjoyed the theme of our eTwinning project this year. Having met our classmates from partner schools online has allowed us to make new friends that we hope will continue in the coming years. It would be nice to be able to meet like our prof Rapala who will go to Italy with the Erasmus + project...

4. Everybody wants world peace.

Everyone should travel at least one in their life, to live life to the full. We liked the concept of "memories" in this poem. We believe that life, if lived well, can leave us beautiful memories that will allow us to live the present well, after having lived the past well. There is no place for war in this process. The memories that war could leave in people are only of pain and death and a possible victory over the enemy would not make all of this disappear. Does it make sense to speak of an "enemy"?

5. Peace is represented by an olive tree

This text makes us understand that symbols encourage us to understand reality better. If we think of peace, we are reminded of the olive tree, the dove, the Olympic games ... In this regard, we recall a poem by Nelson Mandela: "Peace is a dream, can become reality... But to build it you need to be able to dream ".

And we all want to be able to dream!

Andrea, Michele and Diego

6. La paix soulage les militaires

This short poem in French opens our eyes to the drama of war which brings pain and destruction. The scene that we find most distressing is that children find themselves without fathers. The dream of seeing the olive grove bloom again and the countryside smiling gives hope for the future.

Danilo, Claudia, Esmeralda

7. Perfect World

Few words strike us, many to be welcomed (perfect, equal, affection, calm and brotherhood), few to reject (hate). We ask ourselves a question: will we young people be able to live in a world where hatred does not exist? It depends on the adults, but also on us, the adults of tomorrow ...

Sofia, Giovanni and Isabel

8. Peoples are equal

In this beautiful text the value of inclusion is very high. The differences between people are a wealth. Each has its own beauty, in the color of the skin. And at the end it is hoped, indeed almost commanded, to end the war!

Isabel, Michele and Federico

9. Peace is a wonderful word

The words of this poem are full of meaning and each of them deserves reflection, the positive ones so that they can be realized and the negative ones so that they can be avoided.

Peace, love, happiness, dream, against war.

Situations seem distant from us children, but in reality each of us, starting from our little one, can realize peace, love, happiness and dreams and avoid the drama of war. Together we can do it!

Mariangel, Alessia and Valentina

10. Peace and love

This poem expresses a cry of hope. It hopes for peace, love, empathy, to make people calm and calm and to finally end the war.

Simmy, Vittorio and Rosa

B. Questions to Polish students:

Dear Polish friends, can you tell us a little about the situation you are living with your Ukrainian friends? A Ukrainian student also came to our school, but not in our class...
